I work for the Federal Government and I frequently travel to the larger cities on the East Coast. XM's valuable service gives me up to date information regarding traffic situations in the cities I visit, without the usual fumbling with the dial in an attempt to locate a decent station that just happens to be broadcasting their second rate traffic news on the AM or FM band. Needless to say, I am a long time subscriber to XM and I also enjoy their entertainment value. This move by the NAB is exactly the same stunt that local broadcasters did to DirectTV when they were forced to stop broadcasting network TV because I wasn't getting all the advertisement that "Joe's garage had a $9.99 special on a Transmission replacement for my auto!" who the hell cares?

This crap has to stop somewhere...who's really the boss? The NAB, The TV Broadcasters Assoc. or the Consumer. As our elected representatives you should know the answer.
